NEW MYSTERY IN VANISHING OF SELDEN MILLER

Body Identified by Brother as
That of Missing Musician
Now Declared Not His.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—An examination made in this city of the body taken from Potter's Field, Kenosha, Wis., and identified by Emil Hare Miller as his brother, Selden Miller, a noted musician, who has been missing nearly a year from his home in this city, proved that a mistake had been made.

The corpse arrived from Kenosha at the Miller home, No. 312 South Tenth street, yesterday. The examination was made by Dr. Alfred Reginald Allen, of No. 2018 Spruce street, a physician and close friend of the missing man, and by Dr. J. Clarence Salvas, of No. 1800 Locust street, Selden Miller's dentist.

Following a thorough examination of the body, the physician and dentist were positive that it was not that of Miller. One glance at the face led Dr. Allen to express the belief that the body, although swollen as a result of being in the river, where it was found, for some time, did not bear any resemblance to the missing man.

After comparing measurements of Selden Miller which he has in his office, the physician discovered that the corpse was more than an inch shorter than Miller. Because of its long immersion in water the examiners were unable to compare the difference in weight between the body and Miller.

There is a vast difference in the shape of the mouth of Selden Miller and that of the corpse. The missing musician had a good set of teeth, according to Dr. Salvas, and they were shaped differently from those of the dead man.

In view of the fact that the body was disfigured by the water, Dr. Allen expressed the opinion that Emil Hare Miller might readily have mistaken the body for that of his brother. Members of the Miller family had been making preparations for the funeral of their missing relative when the examination revealed that there had been a case of mistaken identity. It is understood that the body will have to be sent back to Kenosha.

In a statement issued by Emil Hare Miller he says:

"The story that Selden Miller came to his death in the waters of Pike River, in the outskirts of Kenosha, Wis., a number of days ago, has proved to be a mistake, and Dr. Alfred Reginald Allen and Dr. J. Clarence Salvas, Selden Miller's personal physician and dentist, upon a thorough examination have pronounced the body certainly not his."

"The erroneous report of his death has disclosed the undiminished admiration and affection felt toward him by pupils, choir associates and friends, all of whom would be glad to see him return to the city and take up again his artistic career."

The name "Selden" was on some jewelry worn by a musician who, under the name of Alfred Freeman, boarded at the home of J. F. Morgan in Milwaukee. Freeman left the Morgan home suddenly, and when he heard of the finding of a body in the Pike River, Morgan hurried to Kenosha, where he identified the body as that of "Freeman."

From circumstantial evidence, such as the jewelry bearing the name "Selden" and the fact that "Freeman" entered a sanatorium under the name "Miller," friends of the musician are inclined to believe that "Freeman" was Selden Miller, although the body found in the Pike River was not his. They are now concerned with the mystery of "Freeman's" whereabouts.

Robbers Beat and Shoot at Baker. Four men entered the basement bakery at No. 1858 Sixty-eighth street, Brooklyn, where Frank Anglor was at work alone early to-day, and demanded money. When Anglor said he had none the men beat him. He shouted for help and the men fled, but as they went one fired two shots at Anglor, but missed. Dr. Von Deylan of the Coney Island Hospital dressed cuts and bruises about Anglor's head.

HELD AS A WHITE SLAVER.

Woman Arrested After Disappearance of Coney Island Girl.

It is charged she was enticed into the Cherbery house and detained there.
